

The process begins, when an order is taken down.

Afterwards, the process is split into 3 parallel branches:

- The order ticket is submitted to the kitchen.

- Subsequently, the meal is prepared.

- The order is assigned to the waiter.

- Next, the process is split into 2 parallel branches:

- Latterly, the cart is readied.

- Thereafter, one of the following branches is executed:

 - *The non-alcoholic drinks are prepared.

 - *It is silent transition 3ed.

Once one of the alternative branches was executed and all 2 branches were executed, one of the following branches is executed:

 - *It is silent transition 1ed.

 - *The order is given to the sommelier.

 - *After that, one of the following branches is executed:

 - The alcoholic beverages are prepared.

 - The wine is fetched from the cellar.

 - *Once one of the alternative branches was executed it is silent transition 2ed.

Once one of the alternative branches was executed and all 3 branches were executed, it is delivered to the guest's room.

Consequently, it is returned to the room-service station.

Following, the guest's account is debitted.

Thereon, the process is completed.
